

Michigan Publishing is the hub of scholarly publishing at the University of Michigan, and is a part of its dynamic and innovative University Library. Michigan Publishing publishes scholarly and educational materials in a range of formats for wide dissemination and permanent preservation, provides publishing services to the University of Michigan community and beyond, and advocates for the broadest possible access to scholarship everywhere.

Michigan Publishing is comprised of 3 different units: Michigan Publishing Services, Deep Blue, and the University of Michigan Press.

Michigan Publishing Services provides a suite of publishing-related services to the University of Michigan to help increase the visibility, reach, and impact of scholarship. Michigan Publishing Services works with scholars to design affordable and sustainable publishing solutions to make high-quality scholarship available in print, eBook, and Web formats.

Deep Blue is the University's digital repository. It is a permanent, safe, and accessible service for representing our rich intellectual community. Its primary goal is to provide access to the work that makes University of Michigan a leader in research, teaching, and creativity.

University of Michigan Press is the primary academic publishing division of the University. In partnership with authors and series editors, the Press publishes in a wide range of humanities and social science disciplines and plays a critical role in the teaching and learning mission of the University. U-M Press champions the Library's research and scholarly communication missions through global digital and print publishing and distribution programs. The Press also produces publications on Michigan and the Great Lakes region.
